Jazz-style bassist and composer Russell "Rucky" Rand III, 66, died Dec. 24 at his La Jolla home from complications of Alzheimer's disease. Rand, who played for 30 years with the Tony Bennett Quartet, scored numerous film and television titles as well as his own music with Tenderness in Time. Tribute; Fleeing from tragedy, Russell Rand fled his native Colorado and built a new life in Southern California. 28, a student of bassist/composer Claudio Reichmann, Russell developed a distinctive style featuring airy melodies and jazz-tinged grooves, which earned him the title of "the world's youngest jazz bassist." After moving to San Francisco in 1979, Rand was a regular on the Bay Area jazz scene until moving to New York in 1990, where he appeared on such recordings as Tony Bennett's Here's to You. In early 2006, he was hired by the Tony Bennett Quartet, first as a freelance bassist and then as a member of the musical organization. A G.P.S. unit, a note-passing device, a 2-in-1 laptop and a DVD player and web cam were among the personal electronic gear stolen last weekend in an apartment burglary in West Bloomfield. The stolen items, valued at about $2,000, included a music keyboard, a samba steel drum and CDs. The resident, a 30-year-old city worker, had not reported the theft until Monday, when he found the items missing from his kitchen and bathroom, said West Bloomfield Police Lt. William Gosselin. The victim has not been criminally charged. He said it was unclear whether the thief was stealing the items for personal use or for sale. West Bloomfield Lt. Stephen Lugo said police did not yet know if the thief was a resident of the apartment, who would then be charged with the burglary. Police are still investigating the crime, Lugo said. They were told by the resident that he had rented the apartment from an outside party for a year, Gosselin said. The victim owns the apartment, and is in the process of purchasing it from him, Gosselin said. The victim told police that he and the thief were the only two residents in the apartment. No items were taken from any of the bedrooms, Gosselin said. "A person's wallet was stolen out of his car," she said. "Apparently, the suspect stole the wallet out of 2d92ce491b
