oaded that's called "not taking the easy way out", though I have kde issues on xubuntu. i'm having hard time to figure out where to find. after i sudo apt-get update i will sudo apt-get upgrade. where I can check if i have kde upgrade issue? if it's a snap, and if it's not an application upgrade but a system upgrade, /var/log/apt/history.log should tell you. kde application is gwenview. i have 4.8.1, and upgrade to 4.9.0 no error in my system log it just exit without fail. maybe you should start with investigating whether this is the case. try another package manager maybe it is not related to kde. I am using kde. i will. i have jupiter too i have jupiter and snap :) ibodi: and you have snaps enabled in software & updates? lotuspsychje: yes. ibodi: did you add other PPA's? lotuspsychje: i did. i was testing out what they can do. i did not include them to stable repo ibodi: allright, might be worth a try to purge all your snaps lotuspsychje: i know how to purge. i was testing all. so it is a dead end. ibodi: if you are testing multiple PPAs, you might find some 'bad' packages you dont need lotuspsychje: yes, i have them. i did not include them to main repo yet. ibodi: the main repo ubuntu will disable snaps for a reason lotuspsychje: that is why i have jupiter. lotuspsychje: ok ibodi: if you wanna test all the ppa's jupiter can be a challenge lot
