geometry.. Whether the installation was done properly or not, the fact remains that the article was installed in violation of the statute.

We are aware that some courts of our sister states have stated the rule which would allow defendant, in order to render a contract valid, to do an act with full knowledge that it is in violation of the statute. For example, in Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. City of Newark, 134 N.J.L. 599, 52 A.2d 495 (1947), the court upheld the validity of a contract between a city and a construction contractor where the city knew that the contractor was engaged in the building of a factory without a permit. The court, in upholding the validity of the contract, stated that a violation of the statute in question is not necessarily a total breach of the contract.

The court reasoned that the statute is
