It is highly recommended to visit the official Q: Generate a huge number of random numbers in C# I am writing a program that generates a massive amount of random numbers to simulate the behavior of a complex financial system. The software is written in C#, but I am not fluent in that language. I am looking for a quick way to generate massive amounts of random numbers without requiring the user to wait. In the past, I have used Math.Random.Next(min, max), but this only generates numbers between min and max. In my program, I need to generate 100 million random numbers between 100,000 and 100,000,000. What would be the best way to accomplish this? A: Use Parallel.For(int[] array = new int[1000000]; Parallel.For(0, 1000000, i => array[i] = Math.Random()); Math.Random is not a good choice for generating large numbers. Instead, use RNGCryptoServiceProvider. As a general rule, this was good. Especially not being that the movie, based on a memoir by the same name, is as bad as it is. Mitch is being worked over by his dad (an intimidating scene). He's madly in love with his teacher, Barbra (The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo). He's got a spotty employment history, and he's a big troublemaker. He has an interview for a graphic design job. His father thinks it's a good job for a kid. Mitch thinks his dad's plan is
