Genomic stability is one of the most significant properties of any biological system, and any disturbance to it may result in destabilization and diminished functionality of that system. Systems have evolved to tightly control genomic integrity, so any disturbance may have disastrous consequences. The model organism Saccharomyces cerevisiae, however, is particularly vulnerable to genomic disturbances, and this can be used as a model system for other model organisms that are also highly sensitive to genomic disturbances. The purpose of this review is to present the available knowledge of mechanisms involved in repair of genomic disturbances, and the conditions required for ensuring genomic stability using PCR-based assays in yeast.Q: basic sorting of custom arraylist I have a custom list of integers that I would like to sort, but an error keeps showing up. Here's the code: public class MySort extends ArrayList { public MySort(int size) { super(size); } public void sort() { Collections.sort(myArrayList, (o, n) -> o.name.compareTo(n.name)); } } And here's the error: Exception in thread "main" java.lang.ClassCastException: [I cannot be cast to my.views.MySort at my.views.MySort.sort(MySort.java:12) I'm not even sure the sorting method is right, but I can't seem to fix it. A: In your compare method you should pass the same object into the compare() method in your sort() method like so: public void sort() { Collections.sort(myArrayList, mySort); } private static void compare(Object o1, Object o2) { return o1.name.compareTo(o2.name); } In your code, you're trying to compare two objects of type Integer, when you should be comparing two elements of type MySort Gill, Rev.
