AVCWare MP4 Converter Screenshots(a-t-by). Although the acceptability and feasibility of the HEYME in later life have been demonstrated here, the findings must be interpreted cautiously, and these results must be replicated. In particular, the structure of the study included the exploration of older women's experiences of volunteering in later life. The focus on older women may have reduced the number of older men who volunteered. The qualitative study included patients with hip fractures, which may have limited the generalisability of the results. However, the focus of the present study was on the acceptability and feasibility of a new self-management program for hip fracture patients as per a postal survey and to compare this with the previously tested and established In-Reach program. In summary, the study shows that in the vulnerable population of women aged 70 years and over with hip fracture, the acceptability and feasibility of self-management by telephone and Internet is high. Conclusions ===== A self-management program with telephone and Internet support is acceptable and feasible for older women with hip fracture.
