Important Note: In a large-scale operating system, this plugin can cause significant memory usage, so you may experience crashes due to lack of memory or crashes due to the loaded filters using up all available memory. What's New in This Release: Auto-start server is activated upon installation. Videos uploaded by users can be imported into the settings. Multiple servers can be used at the same time. Websites are loaded in an external process so they can be modified without disrupting operation of the server. The filtered links are cached locally so that they may be reused multiple times without reloading the website. In the latest and upcoming releases, we aim to improve the versatility and usability of OnlineVideos. Auto-Start Server: The server started upon install automatically starts downloading videos and importing their details to the local database. This is mostly used for import from internet radio streams, but can also be used for other sites that host the videos or their thumbnails. Modifying the settings for the servers that are running. Multiple servers can be used at the same time. Videos uploaded by users can be imported into the settings. Search, Filter, Favorites, Download: The settings page allows the user to choose, filter and search for videos, as well as adding a bookmark for favorite videos. The progress bar indicates the status of downloading the video (successful or failed), Saving videos to favorites. The progress bar indicates the status of the download. RSS/News Feed support: OnlineVideos supports a simple rss feed reader that collects videos and their thumbnails from all the sites the user has selected. Bookmarking of favorites: Bookmarks can be added in several categories for easy access later. Scraping Sites: Website scraping allows the user to import videos with thumbnails directly into the OnlineVideos application. The results include the videos, as well as information about the server used for scraping. The thumbnail for a video is automatically generated from the thumbnails provided by the website. This can be also used as a test case, while developing the scraping code. Tests: The OnlineVideos-Server-0-120 installation is provided to test the newest features of OnlineVideos. Include/exclude tests: This includes 3 different setups

The main goal of this plug-in is the seamless integration of video content provided by various websites with the MediaPortal application. In order to achieve this, playback is heavily dependent on directshow filters installed on the users operating system. The discovery or scraping of playback links is very flexible and can be done by reading rss feeds, parsing html with regular expressions or even programming against APIs provided by websites. The plug-in interface will unify the user experience from all the different websites into one simple structure. Every site will span a hierarchical tree of categories, each showing a set of videos with descriptions and thumbnails. Support for searching, filtering, bookmarking favorites and downloading is included as well.
