In addition, the database can be used in interference calculations with references in the network display. UDAR module The UDARO multimedia complex allows you to create an environment for learning, seminars and trainings on critical technologies, communications and security in the field of national security of the Russian Federation. All switching channels are used. The interactive approach creates favorable conditions for studying the material. The complex of the automated information-measuring system consists of a laptop, a personal computer and special software. A computer with a network connection is equipped with a standard modem. The computer communicates with the SIS complex in real time and collects, processes, stores and analyzes data received via radio channels from computer terminals and from a network card installed in the appropriate range. There is a back-up power supply system for each personal terminal/computer. Module software provides: Database maintenance and charting Archiving of files and data with automated search and identification of the necessary structures Formation of mind maps of objects and events The host side provides the terminal/computer with a computer network, a connection to the program server, as well as service support. 99% is guaranteed (only if the "INTEX" server is used) complete preservation of all data in the event of a physical or software failure of the program's servers. Warranty for software and hardware - 24 months. Equipment can be purchased and used with a standard laptop. Typical structure of the UDAR equipment park: terminal/computer optional equipment additional software base station Separate devices can be purchased as needed, according to customer requirements.
