This pack of icons was especially created to help give a really unique and original aspect to the files and directories on your computer. KaiOS is an application that can take care of the Kodi media center and make it even easier to use on the Raspberry Pi. It runs in native Raspbian, runs on ARM processors, and requires no package manager and takes advantage of the Raspberry Pi processor speed. KaiOS has the following advantages: - An improved interface - The use of gestures to navigate - Up to date software (via a well maintained up to date git server) - No messing with third-party files (via a self-contained repo) - A variety of plugins - 50% smaller file size When you install KaiOS, a new icon will appear in the screen configuration menu, right next to the Raspberry Pi icon. After selecting that, the screen will be configured, users will be asked to log in and KaiOS will automatically start on bootup. After logging in, KaiOS automatically checks for updates for all your installed software without breaking current installation. If you find a bug, please report it to our issue tracker. If you create a new feature/plugin, send us a pull request. More info: KaiOS is an application that can take care of the Kodi media center and make it even easier to use on the Raspberry Pi.
