When I have something like this as input: $lowest = array(array("a" => "1", "b" => "1"), array("a" => "1", "c" => "1"), array("a" => "1", "b" => "2")); I would like the output to be: array(array("a" => "1", "b" => "2")); I tried doing a foreach loop for each array and then comparing their values, but for some reason I don't know PHP gets confused at that point and throws an error. A: Try this: $lowest = array(); foreach($lowest as $lowest_pair) { foreach($lowest_pair as $key => $value) {

Metabolic profiling analysis of Rat mesenchymal stromal cells during in vitro aging.

Rat mesenchymal stromal cells (MSCs) are multipotent and self-renewing cells that can be isolated from various tissues. These cells can be used in cell therapy without ethical considerations, as they are not derived from embryos. MSCs are a promising candidate for tissue engineering and regenerative medicine due to their numerous therapeutic properties. The ability of MSCs to differentiate into various lineages remains one of the main concerns with cell therapies. Moreover, these cells must be rapidly expanded and cryopreserved at a good ratio in order to support cell therapy. To evaluate cell physiology, great importance is attributed to the search of reliable markers. This work presents a new approach that uses metabolomics to study the profile of MSCs during aging, using complementary techniques such as cytometry, fluorescence microscopy, and Raman spectroscopy. Our results indicated that the MSC population was heterogeneous, and that the protein and collagen content decreased during aging. In addition, using Raman spectroscopy, we demonstrated that the DNA content decreased with time.Back To The Future: Players Of The Game Early Release We've just received word that the PlayStation 4 version of Back to the Future: Players of the Game is now available to download in North America.
