Neutron Neutron is an algorithm (method) for audio signal modification within an audio project. It is meant to operate as an audio equalizer. It is one of the core components of the iZotope RX expansion set. Overview Neutron processes any audio file, not just those saved in a regular stereo format. It has a number of presets, which can be modified and exchanged by using the iZotope RX expansion set. Presets Presets consist of certain settings that can be tweaked. They are altered between the presets on the iZotope RX set. A preset can have multiple modules, which can be modified. Modules Modules are small modules within presets, with internal features, such as specified frequency bands. The frequency bands used can be modified using the RX set. Modules can be made up of tracks, which are small audio files. RX expansion set iZotope RX is a suite of seven audio effects plugins that can be used together.
