KeyMacro is a simple application developed to emulate the usage of a keyboard so you can activate hotkeys while interacting with the PC. Unfortunately, the hotkeys are only added to some applications, so you'll need to download a list of shortcuts from the internet or build it yourself by making use of the included Aseprite editor. Once the hotkeys are set and you have defined which application you're going to use them from, you just need to press the hotkey key and KeyMacro will make it happen. The hotkey tool is very simple to use, it's just a single window and you don't need to fill a long list of details to activate a certain hotkey, as there's no need. We didn't experience any problems when testing KeyMacro and it works very well as long as the Windows version is at least up to the Windows 10 April 2018 Update. KEYMACRO Features: - Activate hotkeys - Generate a list of hotkeys - Set hotkeys for multiple programs at once - Store hotkeys on a hard drive - Set hotkeys for any file type - Create system wide hotkeys - Add hotkeys to start programs at boot - Choose hotkeys while using an application - Add keyboard shortcuts - Add hotkeys to any active application - Automatically open programs - Set a hotkey to open a folder - Add a hotkey to clear the clipboard - Create shortcut keys for a list of programs - Set the hotkey to restore the default programs - Set a hotkey to open the context menu - Add hotkeys to the settings menu - Use a different hotkey for the settings menu - Add a hotkey to your desktop - Open an application from the desktop - Reactivate hotkeys - Change the theme for hotkeys - Display the type of keys used - See the status of hotkeys - Set a hotkey to open an application from the desktop - Set a hotkey to pause - Set a hotkey to delete all clipboard data - Create a hotkey to open web links - Set a hotkey to open a program - Show or hide icons - Toggle full screen - Maximize a window - Maximize all windows - Window zoom - Undo a window position - Minimize a window - Minimize all windows - Put the 1d6a3396d6
