Some why the above code searches for the ID and does not for a specific class. NOTE: I am using this code in wordpress and in wordpress HTML elements are ID's not classes. A: There is no element with id myclass. It has to be the element with a class of myclass, as in the snippet below. You will find the element like so: var element = document.getElementById(myclass); If you really want to find it by class, you can find all elements with myclass class like this: var elements = document.getElementsByClassName(myclass); which returns a NodeList of all elements with that class. A: $("myclass").html(element).css 1cb139a0ed
