A: From the output, you're missing the leading whitespace on the first line: ./[whitespace]: No such file or directory Q: Why does my program not read values when using a for loop in C? I am trying to write a program that reads input from a user, and converts them into a number or a letter. I have a switch statement that can convert the input from a number or a letter to a word and a switch statement for the conversions. However, when I try to print the input using a for loop, it does not print the value. I have been using a nested for loop and am unsure of why this is not working. int x, y, z; printf(" Select an operation to perform: "); printf("1. Addition "); printf("2. Subtraction "); printf("3. Multiplication "); printf("4. Division "); printf("Enter the first number: "); scanf("%d", &x); switch(x) { case 1: printf(" "); printf("Enter the second number: "); scanf("%d", &y); printf("The sum of the two numbers is: "); for(z = x; x

These systems may be multiple-access systems capable of supporting simultaneous communication of multiple wireless communication devices with one or more base stations. A variety of multiple access technologies have been developed for wireless communication systems. These include time division multiple access (TDMA), frequency division multiple access (FDMA), code division multiple access (CDMA), orthogonal frequency division multiple access (OFDMA), single-carrier frequency division multiple access (SC-FDMA) and so on. Generally, a wireless multiple-access communication system can simultaneously support communication for multiple wireless terminals. Each terminal communicates with one or more base stations via transmissions on the forward and reverse links. The forward link (or downlink) refers to the communication link from the base stations to the terminals, and the reverse link (or uplink) refers to the communication link from the terminals to the base stations. This communication link may be established via a single-in-single-out, multiple-in-signal-out or a multiple-in-multiple-out (MIMO) system. A MIMO system employs multiple (NT) transmit antennas and multiple (NR) receive antennas for data transmission. A MIMO channel formed by the NT transmit and NR receive antennas may be decomposed into NS independent channels, which are also referred to as spatial channels, where NS≦min{NT, NR}. Each of the NS independent channels corresponds to a dimension. The MIMO system can provide improved performance (e.g., higher throughput and/or greater reliability) if the 3e33713323
