Measure-it Crack Download [Win/Mac]

This extension allows you to record macros in Firefox, with no need to edit any files. With just one click you can record your keyboard activities, and then play them. If you make your web browser a little bit more convenient and personalized to you, this extension could help in so many ways. You can record what you do with shortcuts, for example. In just a few clicks you can play any macro you have recorded. And you can save it too, or send it to someone to, and, if it is personal and can be shared, you can see your macro on different websites. There are different options to customize the macro editor and add some things that will make it even better. You can set your keyboard shortcuts, access the recording options and be more effective with the built-in browser buttons. In sum, you can record your mouse, keyboard or browser shortcuts and then re-play them to play along with what you are doing on a different page. There are many possibilities to use this extension, but I like being able to quickly record my current website, or one of my regular pages and then play the recording on another page. Working with the first Macro You can create, edit and play your macros with no problem at all. On the home page of the extension you will find some examples, and there is also a macro project manager. This project manager will organize all the macros that you have made. You can add or remove them and also modify them if you need. The browser buttons also appear on the right, but if you don't need them you can get rid of them. It is a very easy to use extension and even though it is a browser extension, you will have no problem managing it. Just click, then hit play. Good for commercial use Firefox and extensions have helped me in so many ways, and this extension is no exception. If you are a web developer and you want to play along with your code while you are using your browser, this extension could be something special for you. If you are a web designer, maybe you don't need anything in your browser to make you work more smoothly. It could be that your shortcut keys are already set up and you don't even notice them. Or maybe your browser and its shortcuts do not match your needs. Perhaps there are some browser shortcuts you do not know, and you would like to know all of them. With this extension you can record and play your shortcuts and 1d6a3396d6
