Bacterial Vaginosis (BV) is the most common type of vaginal infection in the developed world. It affects mainly premenopausal women of reproductive age but it can also affect women of all ages, including those older than forty. The incidence of BV is much higher than previously thought. The condition is easily treated and 95% of women with BV can be treated successfully. The condition is characterized by a significant increase in vaginal bacteria. The bacteria most commonly found in women with BV are Mobiluncus curtisii, Gardnerella vaginalis, Atopobium vaginae, and Prevotella bivia. Most of the time the presence of the above bacterial strains is not associated with abnormal vaginal discharge, itching, burning, or other painful symptoms. Most women with BV have only mild complaints and have no noticeable medical problem. However, some women have severe symptoms that seriously affect their quality of life. The condition is not associated with serious complications. // RACStream+Private.h // ReactiveCocoa // // Created by Justin Spahr-Summers on 2012-10-31. // Copyright (c) 2012 GitHub. The Belgium international was on the losing side in the play-off final last season, but says his involvement in the competition has done wonders for his game. 'I am a person who needs stability and consistency,' he told BBC Sport. 'For me, the Champions League is the biggest club competition in the world. You see some amazing football. You get to know a new group of people, a new city, and you're treated like a champion. 'It's not just a competition for me, it is also a culture. You develop into a champion. And you play like a champion. It is always good to be the highest. 'Maybe I wasn't totally happy with how I did in the final, but I am proud of how I played. I was a bit unlucky with the first goal and the second goal. 'But it was a great experience. I have nothing bad to say about the Champions League.' Manchester City midfielder Kevin De Bruyne says his experiences in the Champions League have been a key part of his development. De Bruyne joined the English side in the summer of 2015 from Wolfsburg and was in the City XI that lost the final to Liverpool last season. And, amid suggestions that he could leave the Etihad Stadium in search of a new challenge this summer, he said: 'I'm happy to be here and to be a Manchester City player. I'm proud to be the Belgian national player in an English club.' Q: flexmath - LaTeX has no effect in presentation I use LaTeX for my presentation.
