A Bridgeton teacher's aide said the dismissal of a popular teacher on Tuesday came as a total shock. Kathleen Gough said her husband, husband Ron, felt the loss just as deeply. “He had to take two or three days to come to grips with it,” she said. Ron Gough, 72, works out of a small classroom at Highland Elementary School, where Bridgeton High School principal Marlo Powell has been at the helm for the past five years. “I think he's done a very fine job,” Gough said. “He got involved in the students. He told me one time the day before I retired, ‘We're going to do it.’ He's done a very fine job. “I'm just going to miss him,” he said. Loce said the alleged misdeed has led to the dismissal of a popular teacher. Loce said the PPA has also been involved in a number of school controversies in the past year. “The fact that he was not cleared (before dismissal) is indicative of what we’ve been seeing recently,
