Mr. A judge ruled Wednesday that 10 witnesses — including a former deputy district attorney, a police officer, a former IRS employee and a bank manager — can testify in a murder case against Ken Casey, the former sheriff of Tulare County. But a judge denied prosecutors' request that former Tulare County Assemblyman and Fresno County Superior Court Judge Daniel McComb be allowed to testify in the trial. McComb told jurors that he talked with Casey about setting up an insurance scam through which Casey could pay the off-duty sheriff more than $1.7 million. RELATED: McComb's lawsuit against Casey was dismissed. In return, he wanted to set the record straight about the alleged deal, and his attorney told the judge that some of McComb's new testimony could be beneficial for the defense. But McComb did not say what he would have testified to, and the district attorney's office said he couldn't testify because he had been assigned to another case by the time the decision was made. "We feel it's important that the defendant has a fair trial," Tulare County Dist. Atty. Mike Flinn said. "But we also have a number of investigations under way." Finn wouldn't comment further on the case, saying that it was still in pretrial stages. No one disputes that McComb approached Casey about the insurance scam. But the district attorney said it was as a consultant who could help Casey with other possible deals or settlements. Casey's attorney, Steven Drizin, said Casey was "extraordinarily confused" when the conversation took place in his office in 2011. Drizin argued that the conversation was "a joke" and that Casey didn't trust McComb, who had some sort of connection with the insurance industry. But the judge ruled that if McComb'
