These controls are the same ones used in any Photoshop image, but you may see some additional controls on the Layers panel when you use the Arrange tools. (Note that the red bar at the bottom of the Layers panel disappears when Photoshop Show Mode is activated.) To see the Layers panel, click the button in the lower-right corner, shown in Figure 4-21, or choose Window | Layers. The Layers panel is easy to find. All of the elements in the screen windows represented in Figure 4-21 are part of the Layers panel. Figure 4-21: When a window is active, it's closed and displayed on the View menu. The Layers panel displays the Transparency panel (see Figure 4-23). (You can also choose Layers | Transparency.) You may also notice that Photoshop hides the layer you've just selected in the Layers panel. When the Layers panel is active, a red bar appears at the bottom of the panel. You can see that the bar is no longer present in this step. This means that the layer you selected for arrangement is no longer active in the document. Figure 4-22: Double-click a layer to activate it, and click the button in the lower-right corner of the Layers panel. This opens the Transparency panel. A layer name is often written on the layer. Layers are flat and can be moved, positioned, merged, moved up, moved down, grouped, and arranged. Multiple layers can be stacked to create a new layer. You can create a new layer by choosing Layer > New. From the New Layer dialog box, choose Stacked Layers. You can also create new layers by clicking Layer > New. Choose a stacking mode from the New Layer dialog box. You can select a layer and move it. To move a layer, drag it while holding down the Ctrl (Command) key. A: There is an array function that will give you the count of all non-empty elements: $count = array_filter($blanks, function($value) { return ($value!= "); }); To adapt your array to that function, try this: $blanks = array("", "", "", "", "", "", "", "", "", "", ""); $count = array_filter($blanks, function($value) { return ($value!= "); }); Q: Finding a pattern from a list of numbers I have a variable that is made up of numbers in this pattern: 1st - x 2nd - y 3rd - z and the pattern repeats until the end. I also have another variable that is mostly equal to the first one and the difference is a constant for all the values.
