Movement Unleash your boundless speed with new offensive and defensive attributes. Players in possession have more acceleration and better stability in the first third of a sprint. Outside of the final 30 meters, players are faster in short sprints, but have less acceleration. Players also have more stability at the beginning of their movement, making them more powerful at taking a pass or dribbling into space. Player Trajectory Huge numbers and an increased spin radius provide more options for players to use a unique angle to attack the ball. Players can now close in on opponents to intercept passes, see through them to take an aerial ball and intercept in front of them to beat them off their line and slip past them. Impact Quicker, more powerful touches to the ball in midfield allow more players to burst forward and unlock the opposition defense. Smaller, higher, more agile players can make strong tackles, block shots, burst into the penalty box and score spectacular goals. Keeper Locks Keeper Locks reduce the amount of time that a free kick is in the air and increases the velocity of the free kick. You'll notice that kickers have more powerful and accurate shots. Also, the tactic where a player stands in a "keeper lock" position by pressing the corresponding button is now an attempt rather than an actual choice. The new Generals The new Generals manage their position, create their passing and shooting options and influence the flow of a game. The set pieces, positioning, first touch, tackle and even build up play now have an influence on the game. The new set pieces give more options for the attacking team to create game-winning opportunities. Easier Pre-Selection Pre-selecting players was always difficult with the shifting screens, and in FIFA 22, all eight teams have three players in the team's starting XI, as well as three players in the bench. Players are equally trained and worked on across various conditions, so you can more accurately predict team performance based on individual attributes. Compound World Player Managing players means deciding on a larger range of attributes in addition to their natural ability. Compound World Player (CWP) provides a more in-depth view of an athlete's performance when deciding his movement and decision-making, creating more options for game, training and tactical changes. The City of Reno is preparing for a major storm that could bring a blizzard to the Tahoe Reno Industrial Center. Schools are being closed and municipal offices are expected to be closed as well. RENO — The National Weather Service is forecasting 6-8 inches of snow for the Tahoe Reno Industrial Center for Wednesday. With wind gusts up to 60 mph, the weather service said a storm is expected to arrive early Wednesday morning and persist through the afternoon. City officials are warning the public of the potential storm and say as of 6 a.m. Wednesday, the city has received only one call regarding power outages. The anticipated blizzard is part of a storm system that also includes rain, heavy winds and lots of snowfall. The storm will begin by late Monday night and persist through early Wednesday. A winter storm warning is already in effect, and is expected to last through Thursday morning. City officials say about 200 city workers, two school district employees and one library worker were unable to report to work Tuesday. The city has also closed several municipal buildings and government offices, including the City Hall, police department, fire department and general services building, which includes the property maintenance department. Civic centers are also closed. Schools in the area are closed for Wednesday, as well as the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony. The Reno-Sparks Indian Colony is encouraging people to avoid all non-essential travel if possible. School officials said Tuesday morning that there was plenty of time to make up missed school work. About 90 percent of schools across the state will be open Wednesday, and most schools will be open Thursday. Temperatures by the lake are expected to be in the 30s Wednesday, and climbing into the 40s by Thursday.
