window.Vascularized fibular grafting for combined bone and soft-tissue defects of the tibia and fibula. The purpose of this study was to report a series of 14 patients with combined bone and soft-tissue defects of the distal tibia and fibula treated with a vascularized fibular graft. These patients were reviewed retrospectively for patient demographics, etiology of injury, preoperative status, surgical procedures, perioperative and postoperative complications, and long-term outcomes. The series included 14 patients (mean age, 20 years) with a mean follow-up of 34.1 months (range, 24-44.9 months). There were 13 males and 1 female. The mean size of the defect was 5.1 cm (range, 3.1-7.9 cm). All cases were treated with a vascularized fibular graft, which was harvested from the ipsilateral lower limb and placed across the site of the defect to restore stability. The donors ranged in age from
