What's New In Kollate?

Kollate is a stylish Chrome Extension for users that want to keep track of the most important information they come across online. Why Kollate? Kollate saves all the content it finds online. As soon as you find something interesting, you can add it to one of the journals Kollate automatically creates for you: Notes Spaced Repetition Reading List Reporters Bookmarks An hour later, you can access all your saved content from anywhere, through Google Keep or Evernote: just in time. You won't lose any information if you delete the contents you've saved, because Kollate has an excellent recovery system so you can get them back. What is Kollate? Kollate is a Chrome extension for saving and organizing links, notes and bookmarks on Google Chrome. Kollate uses Google Drive to store notes and all your references. You can find all your links, notes and bookmarks organized in different notebooks and journals. Right click on a link and select Kollate from the list. You can also open a note with one click and add a link to it. Search for any notes or links you want to read through Kollate by one click and then sort by date and tag. Your favorite searches can be saved in the app. Filter notes by tags. Sort notes by tags. Your tags are a part of any notebook you create. You can sort notes by tags and put notes into a folder if you want to use them later. Just create a notebook for your tags and it will be automatically created for you. If you have a lot of places to read and organize your links, you can create lots of different notebooks to save all of them in. If you need to find a particular note you created, you can search for it. If you remember a particular topic, you can add a note to it. You can also add a bookmark to any link to read it later. You can also create smart collections where you can add the tags you want to use them later. You can also create one-off notebooks where you can add notes, links, or bookmarks to them. You can also set them as your home notebook so they appear in the top bar. Some places might not let you create notes yet. If this is the case you can use one
