Photoshop's editing tools can be used for non-destructive image-editing tasks. The features I discuss in this chapter are not specific to editing images. Adjusting Image Light and Shadow The first task you should perform when you create a new image is to lighten or darken the image to make it more appropriate for print or display. If you decide to maintain the background color, you can use these tools. If you decide to add new colors to the image, you can use these tools. If you decide to remove colors from the image, you can use these tools. Don't forget to make sure that you're adjusting the image layer itself, and not the entire document. More Tools You Can Use Aperture | Controlling Exposure --- | --- Background Eraser | Removing background and other unwanted objects Blur | Blurring an image Blur Brush | Spreading and streaking various effects on an image Canvas | A piece of white paper of a size that fits the image Clone Stamp | Replacing an image with one another Curves | Scaling and toning an image Layer Panel | Organizing multiple layers Layer Mask | Erasing and applying different effects to a layer Layer Styles | Creating various shapes and effects Levels | Controlling highlights and shadows Paint Bucket | Adjusting the entire image Placeholder | Creating a transparent image Ruler | Measuring out an area to cut or copy Sharpen | Sharpening an image Simulate Paintbrush | Adding a pattern, brush stroke, or gradient to the entire image Spot Healing Brush | Selective healing of spots Tonal Control Panel | Controlling the toning of the entire image Toggle | Fading colors between two different hues Vibrance | Boosting bright colors in an image Quick Tip It's important to maintain a relationship between the top and bottom layers of an image. This is usually done by using the layer mask. For example, if you're adjusting an image's exposure, you may decide to change the color balance of the entire image first. After that, you can adjust the exposed image's white balance without affecting the underlying (or background) layer. You can use Photoshop's View/Show and View/Hide Modes in combination with the Quick Fix tools to change the opacity of

Q: How to associate Evernote notebooks to users in Google Apps Script? I created an Evernote Client App on Google App Script and would like to be able to give users the functionality of creating or editing notebooks based on who they are. Here's my sample code:

function startNewNote() { var doc = DocsList.getFileById(currentUser.getId()); if (!doc) { var contents = ContentApp.openById(currentUser.getId()).getBlob(); var blob = Utilities.newBlob(contents, 'text/plain'); var newNote = DocsList.createNote(blob); var sheet = newNote.getSheets()[0]; Utilities.sleep(3000); currentUser.addNote(newNote.getId()); doc = DocsList.getFileById(currentUser.getId()); } var contents = doc.getText(); var blob = Utilities.newBlob(contents, 'text/plain'); var newNote = DocsList.createNote(blob); var sheet = newNote.getSheets()[0]; Utilities.sleep(3000); currentUser.addNote(newNote.getId()); }

 However, this doesn't seem to work with the Apps Script Evernote Service. I could see that my script checks if the current user's Google Account has a user profile, but it doesn't have any documentation on how to add notebooks based on who the user is. A: Currently there is no way to associate notebooks with users in the Apps Script Evernote Service. At least seven Kenyan soldiers and three suspected al-Shabaab militants have been killed in a firefight with Ethiopian forces in Somalia, officials have confirmed. The Kenyan Defence Forces (KDF) said the forces were travelling in the Shabelle region of southern Somalia to pursue al-Shabaab militants when they were targeted by a suicide bomber. "At least six KDF soldiers have been killed, but the number is not yet known as the bodies are still being recovered," said KDF spokesman Brigadier David Obonyo. "A Somali local told the
