[Coronary heart disease and the precancerous syndromes]. The authors review the epidemiological and etiological data relative to precancerous syndromes and coronary heart disease. They agree on the weak concordance between the two diseases, whilst the supposed link between the precancerous syndromes and coronary sclerosis is a myth. On the contrary the high incidence of coronary heart disease among subjects at high risk for precancerous syndromes may be the reason of an upward revision of the incidence of early coronary sclerosis. It is suggested that the precancerous syndromes and the occurrence of coronary sclerosis may be a part of a same continuum.The role of triacylglycerols in the progression of non-alcoholic fatty liver disease. Although obesity is the main risk factor for non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD), the contribution of specific dietary factors is poorly understood. The role of dietary triacylglycerols (TAGs) in NAFLD has been investigated in several dietary intervention studies, but the findings have been inconsistent. In the current study, we aimed to investigate the effect of different dietary fatty acid (FA) profiles on the progression of NAFLD. We randomly allocated healthy men (n 9) aged 35 ± 4 years with a body mass index of 26 ± 2 kg/m(2) to one of three isocaloric diets designed to have a moderate or high intake of unsaturated fats (17% energy), monounsaturated fats (MUFAs), or saturated fats (SFAs). Fatty acids were provided in a combination of crude vegetable oils (olive, canola and palm oils; n 9) or purified MUFA and SFA (n 10). At baseline and after 3 months of feeding, we investigated liver fat content using magnetic resonance spectroscopy and measured plasma concentrations of alanine aminotransferase, aspartate aminotransferase, lipid peroxide and glucose. Fatty acid profiles of erythrocyte membrane phospholipids were determined. The mean weight loss after 3 months was 3 ± 1 kg. We found no significant effects on plasma lipid concentrations, liver fat content, or erythrocyte membrane FA profiles. However, both interventions resulted in a significant increase in the plasma concentrations of TAGs, glucose, and glucose/insulin ratio. The increase in liver fat content was 1.8 ± 0.9 % (low-unsaturated fat diet

Q: Group or list related to a key I have a dictionary dict, in which I assign values to keys: dict = {'n_p':{3:1,1:1.5,1:1.5,4:1,1:1.5,1:1.5,1:1.5},1:2,2:1,3:1,4:1,2:1,5:1,6:1,7:1,8:1} I want to get groups or lists according to the number that appears in the dictionary, for example: dict: 1: [[1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8],[1,2],[2,1]] 2: [[3],[3,4,5,6,7,8,9]] 3: [[],[]] 4: [[],[],[6,7,8],[6,7]] My results must be dynamic, so can´t be generated with a for or a for loop. A: my_list = list(zip(*dict.values())) #generate list of lists from dict values print(my_list) # to convert lists of lists to a list list(map(list, my_list)) # dictionary comprehension, first create dictionary, then add to list of lists {k:dict_list.append(dict[k].values()) for k in dict} Effects of exogenous hydrogen peroxide on caspase-2 and caspase-3 and on PARP cleavage in primary somatic and gonadal cells of testis from a shark. Primary somatic (PS) and primary germ (PG) cells were isolated from the testis of the shark

Prionace glauca, and their morphological aspects and protein expression were studied. PS and PG cells are somatic cells that dedifferentiate from adult gonocytes and produce germ cells. By histological analysis, the cells obtained showed signs of immaturity. The PS and PG cells presented with a caspase-2-like immunostaining that increased in the PS and PG cell lines after stimulation with H_2O_2, and they also presented with typical apoptosis markers, such as caspase-3-like immunostaining and PARP cleavage. The expression of
