Development and validation of a specific, high-performance liquid chromatographic method with fluorescence detection for the determination of alprenolol in human serum and urine. A new high-performance liquid chromatographic (HPLC) method with fluorescence detection for the determination of alprenolol in human serum and urine was developed and validated. Alprenolol and internal standard are extracted from human serum or urine with ethyl acetate and cleaned up on a C18 column. Alprenolol is detected by fluorescence detection (excitation at 243 nm and emission at 326 nm). The method is linear in the range 0.25-25 microg/mL in serum and in the range 0.25-20 microg/mL in urine. Alprenolol and internal standard are eluted within 4 min. The method is fully validated.
