AI improvements AI is being improved in FIFA 22 to better reflect the physical movements of a football player, adapting to the direction of play, speed and the player’s role on the pitch. The technology is meant to more accurately replicate the intelligence of human players. Clubs are now able to set their ideal formations, from 3-4-3 to 4-3-3- to 4-1-2- and 5-1-2- and to use different tactics on the pitch. In game, formations are used to further enhance the play styles of both teams. Tactics can be changed with the press of a button within any game mode. Single and Double Player Pass Approaches Players’ decisions to either pass the ball to a teammate or stay onside are now part of gameplay. Players can now change their patterns of single and double passing within the same game. Before in FIFA 20, players could only choose which type of passing to use in the right circumstances. New Player Rating System As you climb up the Professional, Elite and Championship tiers, you can also unlock different tiers of player ratings. Professional tier players will be rated with a four-star rating in game, while Elite players will be given a three-star rating, and Championship players will be awarded a two-star rating. The ratings will be transferred to FIFA 2k20. New Skill Pass Animation and Touching New animations and touch effects have been introduced to complement the new additions to the passing system. For example, when players receive a passing assist from a teammate, they will now send the ball in a different direction to where it was, improving the visual elements of the system. Camera Movement With the introduction of Camera Move technology, stadiums will move around in a variety of ways, building-scale to match the shape and size of the pitch. The camera can now be moved in a variety of ways: High/Low, Forward/Backward, and Up/Down. Pitch Scale & Stadium Effects FIFA 22 introduces FIFA Pitch Scale technology, which dynamically adjusts stadium sizes, creating smaller, tight confines in smaller stadiums and smaller spaces around the pitch. More animated goalkeepers in addition to the five (5) animated goalkeepers from FIFA 21, FIFA 22 introduces a new goalkeeper animation that offers a more human-like goalkeeping style, including gestures and reactions to players’ skill levels.
