If you like to use Geiko as your OAuth2 provider, you're in luck. Geiko has a great new feature to help you get started. They've now introduced the GeikoDev Console which you can check out on github. The most exciting aspect of this tool is the ability to create PostgreSQL repositories. This is currently in beta, but is likely to gain traction over the next few months. You will be able to create OAuth2 clients, backends, servers and role-based users. I just went through creating one and just for fun, it's giving me an 'Error: Failed initializing OAuth2 Client' message in the drop down box for Google. Have others been having this issue? That is a bug - we'll fix it in the next release. Thanks for letting us know! I have Geiko successfully provisioning my App Engine app using the dev console. I have been using it for authentication with my Google Adwords app and it works great so far. I'm now trying to use it to access one of my Google Drive accounts and I'm having trouble. I have created a project, verified my package name, given the correct client id and secret. I've also verified the service account email address which I'm using on the dev console. When I go to edit the project and add a new API client, I'm given an error saying: "Failed initializing OAuth2 Client. Error: 403 Forbidden". I'm getting the same thing. I have a Postgres database, but I think maybe this is from using another database before? I'm trying to create and client on one instance, and running into a bunch of errors. Can anyone help? I was using the latter (on the Google side) successfully, so at first I thought Geiko might be doing something different. I gave it a try, and at first all looks fine. When I go to create client, and select Google, OAuth and I put in my Client ID and Client Secret, it says that the Client ID and client secret were NOT found, etc. It eventually comes up with something like "Failed initializing OAuth2 Client. Error: 403 Forbidden". Any ideas? I followed the guide mentioned in this thread, and here is the case: I've registered a new domain.com with Google Apps. And I've created a new project in my Google Admin and then imported the domain data.

Budapest [Hungary], July 14 (ANI): The candidate of All India Anna Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (AIADMK) candidate, Jayalalithaa and Indian National Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, will now face each other in a head-to-head contest in a highly-contested election in Tamil Nadu's Thanjavur constituency. Popularly known as Thanjavur, it is home to the famous Kumbakonam temple. This constituency accounts for 10.5 percent of the population in Tamil Nadu. AIADMK leader J Jayalalithaa has filed her nomination papers as a candidate in the ongoing Lok Sabha elections. The date for the filing of the nomination papers has been fixed for July 21. This is the second time that Rahul Gandhi has faced Jayalalithaa in a direct battle. In the 2012 elections, she defeated his party candidate and son-in-law Robert Vadra. (ANI) Q: WCF Using Roles I am currently creating a website that uses WCF to pass across a sql connection to create, view and edit our sql databases. I am having issues with the WCF being saved in the site's 'App_Data' folder with the user that is logged in. If I run the site under the admin account I can save my WCF XML to the 'App_Data' folder and it is all fine. If I login and save the WCF to the database I get the following error: Unable to open 'C:\inetpub\wwwroot\MySite\bin\Debug\MySite.xsd' for writing. It is being used by another process. I have looked for a solution for 2 days now, and everything I have found suggests that adding [role="domain\username"] to the references as an attempt to prevent this issue. The problem with this is that our site operates via a roles concept, where certain users have access to certain modules on the site, and I have found that many solutions are based on this concept. All of the examples I have seen using [role="domain\username"] work ok for the admin account, but not when it is a different user. I have come across the following that does not seem to work at all:
