Nitrogen oxides are implicated in acid rain and smog formation. A variety of approaches are currently being developed to minimize the emissions of nitrogen oxides, primarily through the use of catalysts and/or filters. As a result of efforts to reduce the emission of nitrogen oxides into the atmosphere, particular attention has been directed to the elimination of nitrogen oxides from automobile exhausts. In fact, from the viewpoint of government regulation, automobile manufacturers must meet government standards for emission of noxious components in the exhausts of their automobiles. One approach for meeting these standards has been to provide a catalyst in the exhaust system of the automobile whereby the emission of nitrogen oxides can be effectively reduced. U.S. Pat. No. 4,303,536 to McDaniel, et al., for example, discloses that exhaust emissions from internal combustion engines can be effectively reduced by providing a three-way catalyst comprising a platinum group metal (such as platinum or palladium) and two or more metals from a group consisting of rhodium, ruthenium, iridium d0c515b9f4

The Titanic sank because the population of New York City was growing. Between 1880 and 1914, the city saw its population grow from about 620,000 to 1.1 million, and the city was on a fast track to growing to 2 million. What if a series of geological and political events led to a catastrophe to hit the city? The answer is the Titanic. The first version of the ship, known as the Britannic, was a wreck in 1899 that killed 1,012 people. The Titanic hit an iceberg on its maiden voyage in 1912. She sank within hours, costing 1,517 lives. This story is part of Business Insider's series called "World's Most Dangerous Jobs." You can read the other

A: If you only want to know if two strings are equal or not, simply calling equals() on them will do. To write this to a file, you can use System.out.println (or something similar), and use the method instead of outputting on the same line. Note that, on JDK versions before 11, you should not use System.out.println() as it prints on the console, not to a file. So you have to use something like this instead: System.out.print("String: "); String s = "This is a test"; System.out.println(s); System.out.print(" String 2: "); String s2 = "This is another test"; System.out.println(s2); Edit: as pointed out by
