Free.Identity verification is an essential feature in computer systems to provide trust and security. It is often desirable to have a verification procedure applied to identity of a user that is independent of the identity verification procedure itself. For example, if the user enters a bank account number, it is not a bad thing for the user to undergo a theft-proofing verification procedure before being allowed to enter that bank account number. However, that theft-proofing verification procedure would need to be applied to every account number that the user enters. Clearly there is a need for solutions that avoid the shortcomings of the prior art. 648931e174

From social media, email, and search,.Electric cars and scooters are becoming more visible on city streets as start-up companies like Bird, Lime, and Spin, each backed by hundreds of millions of dollars, vie to capture a slice of this rapidly growing market. But the state of California is getting in on the game. In an effort to encourage residents to give electric cars a try, the state has issued $1.3 million in loans to help more than 600 residents get the newest generation of electric vehicles in the coming months. Start-ups, auto makers, and high-tech companies, however, could not collect on the loans before the money ran out last month. As the first cash incentives aimed specifically at electric vehicles, the California Electrification Loan Program could be a model for other states and cities. It is a reminder of the nascent state of electric vehicles, which are currently dependent on government support. "Ultimately, this
