THE STORY OF FIFA In the late 1930s, Italian newspaper journalist and sports director Cesare Maldini was determined to create a way for local children to be inspired by the world of football. He decided to design a new series of footballs that were more affordable and accessible. His game of football, FIFA, was created at the Sport Studio in Turin, Italy, in 1948. The next 20 years went by without a hit, until in 1968 Maldini was invited to put a new FIFA World Cup on the TV. With just 13 years, FIFA had taken off. The first official FIFA World Cup was in England, in front of over 90 million TV viewers. FIFA has since grown into the biggest sport in the world. Everyone from around the world can now play FIFA on their devices, and many millions more watch FIFA on TV, online, or on tablets and smartphones. Packed with incredible gameplay and presentation, FIFA covers the highs and lows of global football, and the action on and off the pitch.

Additionally, brand new videos are released periodically that give insights into the game, the team, and our product teams. This re-build integrates technology found in professional gaming to give players an enhanced 3D visualization of the game. Enhanced animations bring players into the game with new details like stretch marks, torn jerseys, and footsteps, producing a new level of realism. New Player Experience The heart of the game has been the player. In FIFA 17, the player is in charge of all the tactics and decision-making in the game.
