[§ 53-202(a)(4).] The commission, by contrast, is vested with the power "[t]o impose disciplinary sanctions on all practitioners, except those governed by this chapter." § 53-2(a)(6). See De Hahn, supra, 96 N.J. at 324, 476 A.2d 1195. Moreover, "[i]t is an essential part of the independence and impartiality of the [commission] that it not be subject to `coercion' in the sense of having its decisions `influenced by any government official or any person having a personal interest in the outcome.'" Ibid. In New Jersey, the law has long recognized that "the public has an interest in the licensure, discipline and ultimate discharge of licensees to assure honest and competent service." Id. at 326
