The less you get done, the more you can scratch your belly and eat more meals that aren't meals. This is also applicable to men, such as it being a good day if you finally get out of bed and you're able to lie there a couple of minutes, because whatever you do after that is all for naught. Unless you get laid, that is. Then it's all for naught. Besides, you'll probably die. This too, is why it's useful to see friends and family die from old age. It gives you perspective.Hornby line The Hornby line is a railway line connecting Hornby with the West Cumberland Main Line in England. It uses the East Lancashire Railway's line from the Limekilns yard of the West Cumberland Line to the Embsay and Bolton Abbey lines, the Embsay line of the present-day West Coast Main Line and the Bolton line of the West Yorkshire railway. History When the East Lancashire Railway was built from Settle to Haslemere, the section from the Limekilns yard to Hunts Cross, Bolton was the junction with the West Yorkshire lines. The Sheffield–Bolton main line continued via Stockport Tiviot Dale and past the Ravenhead junction on the Hallam–Haslemere Line to Bolton, while the Leeds–Sheffield and Midland Joint Railway at Hunts Cross worked a through line into the Limekilns yard. The Limekilns yard was quite small and the only station on the line was, which opened on 1 September 1849 and closed in March 1951.

I had thought about using: if($("#welcomeinput").val() == ""){ $("#welcome").hide(); } But it hides my div when I try to enter a value in the textarea. Here is what I have so far: A: .val() will return the value of the element. If the element doesn't have a value, the resulting value will be an empty string. That's why it's hiding the element in that case. Instead, use.trim() to remove whitespace at the beginning and end of the string: $("#welcomeinput").trim().length == 0 jQuery's.trim() function returns the trimmed string. A: Your code would hide the div when you type, a value, or delete. Instead, try to make use of an: if (!$("#welcomeinput").val()) { $("#welcome").hide(); } It would be a good idea to put that at the bottom of your page, because it would be executed whenever the page loads.
