A: Due to the keygen now being available I am re-marking this answer as answered. I was doing the same thing as the original poster. I think it is best for new users to use this method in order to get help and a solution rather than posting a software piracy question on a major website such as this one. 1. Download the crack using the link below. 2. Crack the software using the keygen.exe that you have downloaded. 3. Restart the PC (Leave the crack installed) 4. Open the program. It will ask for the serial key if your software is registered (look for it under options). I hope this helps anyone else that might be having the same problem. The effect of fluoride on enamel dissolution. This study was designed to test the hypothesis that the inhibition of enamel dissolution by sodium fluoride (NaF) is non-linear and to characterize the pH profile of enamel dissolution as a function of the concentration of fluoride. The phosphoric acid titration method and the microtitration method were used to examine the dissolution of pure amorphous and biogenic enamel specimens in suspensions of 0.1 and 10 mM NaF in the presence or absence of 1 mM KF. The results from the phosphoric acid titration method were fit to a parabolic sigmoidal inhibition curve $[C(NaF)]^{-1/2}$. The phosphoric acid titration method provides limited insight into the dissolution of enamel compared to the microtitration method. The 5% dissolution value was lower for the pure amorphous enamel than for the biogenic enamel. The pH profile was characterized by a first dissolution rate constant, k_1 , and a plateau pH, pH_0 . The pH_0 was more alkaline for the pure amorphous enamel than for the biogenic enamel. The dissolution of biogenic enamel was also more inhibited by NaF than was the dissolution of pure amorphous enamel. The inhibition of enamel dissolution was non-linear over the concentration range tested, in agreement with the results of other workers.
