Building a Collection of Layers As you work with the tools of Adobe Photoshop, you'll find that you work with many different layers in your image. A _layer_ is essentially an object that you move around in your picture or manipulate, such as adding a layer of color, drawing a simple shape, or adding a picture. The layer in your image is more than a tiny object that sits on top of the image. You can use your layer to separate the colors of different objects in a picture and then manipulate the colors on that layer. For example, you can add color to an object by using a layer, add gradient fills to the image, or draw a simple shape on a layer. The _collection_ of layers is one way that you organize your image. You could just create a hundred or so layers of a particular image and call each one a different thing. But that's boring and leads to problems later on. Instead, you can collect many layers into one Photoshop document. That way, you can customize each of the layers by adding new text, pictures, and colors to the image. The layers are organized in a certain way that makes it easy to get back to any particular layer in the collection. For example, you'll often want to apply color-correction tools to a particular layer. If you're just starting to use Photoshop, I recommend creating a collection of layers to organize your work. With Photoshop Elements, you can create collections, but you don't have to. Photoshop Elements is a pretty powerful tool, but you can find most of the functionality of Photoshop in Elements. If you use Elements, you may find that you spend less time creating layers and more time organizing collections. You can create a collection of images in Photoshop or Elements, but any images you place into a collection aren't easy to navigate and work with. You can find the collection of the file you used to create the image

Q: How do I compute the rank of the matrix Let $A \in M_{m \times n}(\mathbb{R})$ be a real matrix and I_n the identity matrix of size $n \times n$. I would like to know how to compute $\text{rank}(A+I_n)$ and $\text{rank}(A-I_n)$? A: Write your matrix as $A = \begin{bmatrix} A_1 & \dots & A_j & \dots & A_n \end{bmatrix}$, where the A_i are $m \times m$ submatrices. Consider the $m \times n$ matrix $D = \begin{bmatrix} A_1 \\ \vdots \\ A_j \\ \vdots \\ A_n \end{bmatrix} \mathbf{e}_m$, where \mathbf{e}_m is the vector with all entries 1 (of size $m \times 1$). Then $\text{rank}(A+I_n) = \text{rank}(D+I_m) = \text{rank}(D) + m$, since the row space of D is the same as that of $A+I_n$. Likewise, if we write $B = \begin{bmatrix} A_1 \\ \vdots \\ A_j \\ \vdots \\ A_n \end{bmatrix} - \mathbf{e}_m$, we have $\text{rank}(A-I_n) = \text{rank}(B-I_m) = \text{rank}(B) + m$. Generally, if you want to find the rank of a matrix of size $m \times n$, it is often easier to write it as a block matrix C where the last $m-n$ columns are identically zero and then compute the rank of $C-I_m$. It's often used with the clone or paint tools. The Lens Correction Tools are used to make your photos look sharper. They include the Auto-Correct tool, which helps you fix color or exposure problems, and the Spot Removal tool, which can quickly and easily fix unwanted objects. The Pen Tool lets you doodle on your photo, transforming it into a personal piece of art. The Pencil Tool lets you easily draw objects on a photo and create a 3D look. The Eraser tool allows you to quickly and easily remove unwanted marks from a photo. The Character and Artistic tools let you create text and vector graphics. You can use the shapes to make web graphics, logos, and designs. After Effects by itself doesn't have a lot to offer. However, it can be helpful to include in your reel as it's a great way to emphasize your editing and compositing skills. What To Create In Your Reel You can't just call yourself a visual effects artist and leave it at that. You need to be versatile and show your other skills. You'll need to create a variety of content in your reel. Here are some common types of content: Lighting effects You can use lighting effects like iridescent effects, fog and multiple reflections to give your reel a unique look. In After Effects, you can use the Gaussian Blur filter to blur the image or the Motion Blur filter to create a dry, smoky effect. Another good effect is a bounce camera filter, which adds a second camera in front of a subject. Compositing Compositing is the process of taking multiple layers and combining them into one image. It's often used to create a new element or different colors in an image. You can use the Composite, Screen, and Dodge/Burn filters to add or remove objects in an image. For example, you can use the Composite tool to add a background or a subject to a different color or background. You can also use the Screen tool to remove objects. For
